Altitude Chart

Processing time canning guides given for acid foods are normally based on canning at or below 1,000 feet above sea level using the boiling – water method. When processing at altitudes higher than 1,000 feet adjust the processing time according to the “Boiling – Water Canner” chart below.

The steam – pressure method is used for low – acid foods. The pounds pressure normally given by canning guides for low – acid foods are based on using a weighted – gauge canner and processing at or below 1,000 feet above sea level. When using a dial – gauge canner, process at altitudes according to the “Steam – Pressure Canner” chart below.

Boiling – Water Canner:
Altitude (Feet)	Increase Processing Time
